Their Friends Say They Have Alibia for the Date of the Murder.

Other Important Arrests Believed to Be Impending in Chicago.

SEPRCIAL TO THE EVERING WORLD. CRECAGO, Ill., June 12 -Alexander Sullivan, for the second time in his life, is behind the bars charged with murder, is doing his best to get out of jail.

This morning he sent for his law partner, Mr. Windes, and the two held a long and secret consultation about the matter of getting bail, &c.

What are you going to do?" Mr. Windes was asked when the conference broke up. "We haven't decided yet what course to pursue," he replied, "but probably at a very early moment we shall make a motion before one of the Circuit Judges to have Mr. Sullivan released on bail."

Will that be done to-day?" "Possibly; but I can't tell for certain." It was sumored on the street to-day that Sullivan's friends had decided to apply to Judge Tuley for a writ of habeas corpus, but this could not be confirmed.

It is safe to say, however, that Sullivan will soon be walking the streets again. HABEAS CORPUS FOR SULLIVAN.

Judge Tuley this afternoon issued a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Afexander Sullivan, returnable at 4 o'clock, when arguments will be made.

HE SLEPT WELL. The noted prisoner slept well during the night. At any rate, he retired to his bunk very shortly after he was brought in and remained there until the breakfast hour, 7 o'clock. e was in his own home, and at peace with all the world.

DID NOT EAT MUCH, THOUGH. Mr. Sullivan did not eat heartily of the duffers" and coffee, which make up the jail breakfest.

After making his toilet he sat down to meditate, and in a short time received his first visitor, his law partner. Mr. Windes. The visitor remained but a few minutes, during which he consulted with the prisoner about business matters.

THE SPECIAL GRAND JURY EMPANELLED. The special Grand Jury was empanelled at 11 o'clock this morning, in Judge Shepard's court.

In addressing the jury Judge Shepard said that be expected a full, exhaustive, impartial investigation of the murder of Dr. Cronin.

investigation of the murder of Dr. Cronin.

The entire resources of the county, he said, would be at the disposal or the Grand Jury, and winesses who would not testify should be made to do so.

The Grand Jury had in its possession the power to make them do so. This is faken as meaning that the winess who "don't know" and "don't remember," will be subjected to the operation of the sweat-box, thumbsprews, the rack and a few such other effective devices which strengthen their memory and develop their powers of speech.

MOBONEY IDENTIFIED BY HATPIELD.

Moroney is undoubtedly the man who bought the furniture for the Carlson cottage, in which Dr. Cronin was murdered.

For the first time since the man was arrested in New York this fact was established this morning by Hatfield, the man who sold the furniture, and who has heretofore been as silent as a clem as silent as a clam.

"Moroney is the man who bought the furniture of us," said Mr. Hatfield this morning.

Mr. Hatfield had a great mental battle with himself before he gave forth the coveted information.

At first he declined to say anything about the case, claiming that what he might have to say would perhaps injure the case. "Please don't ask me." he pleaded; "because I cannot see what good it would do for me to talk about the case. "Were you not shown a photograph of a man two days ago and was it not the picture of the man who bought the furniture from

"Ye—es. The picture was certainly the likeness of the man who bought the goods in this store."

"Well, here is a description of the man Moroney, arrested in New York yesterday: He is atrongly built, about 5 feet 7 inches in height, has a Roman nose and Tald forehead; is of fair complexion and weeks a light brown mustache. Is that the original of the picture?"

The arrest of Sullivan has created a pro-found sensation here. While the majority of the people of Chicago are of the opinion that the verdict of the jury was fully justified by the evidence, the friends of the Irish leader are loud in their depunciations of the action taken by the authorities and claim the arrest of their chief is an outrage.

SECRET POLICE CLUES. That the police have secret information which has not come out during the Coroner's inquest is certain, and it is runtored that it is based upon something much more substantial than man appoint. han mere suspicion.

COWGHLIS IN IT DEEPER. The testimony of John C. Garrity, a truckman, at yesterday's seasion is regarded as very important in implicating Detective Dan Coughlin still more deeply in the conspiracy. Sorgt. Hoefig, who was at the desk in the East Chicago avenue station early in May, testified that one evening between the 1st and 4th of that month a message came for Coughlin, requesting him to come immediately to the house of Sullivan, the ideman, at Lakeview.

Coughlin was out at the time, but he gave him the message when he came in, and the latter said it was all right.

On the night of May 4 Coughlin was not at the station at all, so far as he could remember.

CRONIN'S SUMMONS TO NEW YORK. Several important telegrams have been produced by the Coroner and read to the jury, which summoned Dr. Cronin to New Yorkin January last.

One was from J. T. McMahon, and the other from Ronayne, and were in relation to the report of Dr. Cronin in the investigation of the charges expired Nullivan Feeley and of the charges against Sullivan, Feeley and Boland.

Dr. Cronin did not go to New York, but sent back word that he would cast his vote as he did at the trial.

THIS LOOKS BAD FOR SULLIVAN. The testimony of J. D. Haggerty, who had known Sullivan and Dr. Cronin for years, is looked upon as very bad for Alexander Sullivan.

In a conversation with Sullivan during the Croain trial in 1885. Haggerty says the former said to him that he regarded Dr. Cronin as a secoundrel, and a menace to the Irish cause, and that it would be a good thing to get rid of him.

WALSH, THE INVINCIBLE, SUSPECTED. Suspicion has been directed towards John Walsh, who is also known as John Hanley, the notorious Invincible, as having had a hand in the murder.

M'DONALD WON'T TALE. "McDonald on the other hand is a quiet, reticent and rather stupid man. He won't talk to any one."

Both McDonald and Moroney claim that they can prove an alibi. Edward J. Rowe, who called on Moroney last night, says he can positively prove that Moroney has not been away from the city in months. He has seen him nearly every day, and he has never missed seeing him for more than three days.

BOWE DEFENDS HIS PRIEND. THE EVENING WORLD man called on Mr. Rowe this morning. He was just getting out of bed. 'I am positive that Moroney is an innocent man, for he has not been out of my sight for more than three days in months. HERE THE DAY APTER THE MURDER. "The day after Cronin's disappearance was reported he was in my place. We talked the matter over and wondered what had become of him. That was about 11 o'clock in the morning. From my place he went to Staten Island, stopping, I think he told me, at the Washington Hotel. That evening I saw him again at my place, and I've seen him almost every day since,"

"You saw him last night?"

You saw him last night?" "What did he have to say?"

DILLON'S DISLIKE POB MORONEY.

"Oh, he didu't say much. It's all done by Dillon, who has a personal dislike for Moroney. You see he has the power to do a man injury now and he has done it.
"I don't think Moroney would care to have me say anything about what he said to me last night. He is an innocent man, and is anxiously waiting the time for his departure to Chicago."

OTHER WITNESSES FOR MOBONEY The reporter hupted up James J. Stanton, who was Rowe's bartender at the time of Grenin's disappearance. He also is sure that Moroney was in the dity at the time of Cro-

BOTH MEN HAVE BEEN LONG WATCHED. Although Inspector Byrnes says that he does not know upon what grounds the arrest of Moroney and McDonald was ordered by the Chicago police, it is learned to-day that he evidence against the two has been gathered quietly and secretly while the investigation was pending in the West.

MORONEY'S PROTOGRAPH IDENTIFIED. Moroney is thought to be the man who purchased the furniture which was found in the Carlson cottage, and his identification was established from a photograph which was shown to a salesman in the furniture store who had dealings with that mysterious per-

WAS HE AT THE COTTAGE? Moroney has also been identified, it is said, in the same way as the larger of the two men who occupied the cottage, and as one of the men who called for Dr. Cronin and drove him from his office to the cottage on the evening of May 4.

They also say he is identical with the mysterious J. B. Simons.

M'DONALD'S SHARE IN IT. McDonald is believed to be Moroney's companion, and the two together posed as the "Williams" brothers, whose names have come up so frequently during the inquest. THEIR RECORDS IN PHILADELPHIA.

Moroney and McDonald were both well known in Philadelphia, where they lived for a long time. The former was employed in a store in Market street, and was always identi-fied with the Nationalian party. MORONEY AN OBATOR.

He was apparently well educated and was an eloquent speaker at most of the meetings of the Municipal Council, of which he was a member.

M'DONALD A SULLIVAN MAN. TOO. McDonald, who was a blacksmith in Phila-delphia, was not so well known as Moroney, but he was an outspoken friend of the Suliivan faction. He came to this city two years ago, and secured a position in Johnson's blacksmith shop, at 758 First avenue. He is said to own considerable property in Philadelphia, and it was on account of his former residence there that he became mixed up with McGea-han, also a Philadelphia blacksmith, who was at first regarded as a suspect in the Cro-M'DONALD'S ALIBI. COL. KERWIN ON M'DONALD.

COL. Michael Kerwin, editor of the Tablet and one of the most prominent Iriah Nationalists in this city, said of McDonald to-day:

"I know McDonald quite well, and from my knowledge of the man I believe he would be the last man to enter into any such combination. I have known him as a bard-work. ing, intelligent and patriotic man, actuated by an honorable and worthy desire to aid the cause of Ireland, and I think that when the truth is known he will be found entirely in-nocent of any charges made against him."

POLICEMAN FARRELL'S GRIN. Two Supreme Court Judges Put Him

Trial for It Before the Board. Policeman Christopher Farrell, of the Leonard street station, is on trial to-day before the Com-missioners on charges made against him by Supreme Court Judges Miles Beach and Edward M. Patterson.

These high judicial dignitaries were walking along Chambers street, at the intersection of Church street, on their way to court, when the driver of ruck which had been blocked on the crossing suddenly whipped up his team, and the Judges only saved themselves by making the Judges only saved themselves by making athletic, if undignified, leaps across the track. As they gained the sidewalk they noticed Policeman Farrell standing there, and they say he was grinning at what had occurred. They were indignant that he should allow such a thing to happen and not lift a finger.

Judge Patterson said to the policeman: "Sir. you are a very impertinent officer."

The policeman still grinned, but he made no attempt to arrest the truck driver. The judges reported him for gross neglect and preferred formal charges against him.

At to-day's hearing Judges Patterson and Beach appeared and retold their story.

Officer Farrell insisted that he did not see the occurrence and therefore could not arrest the truckman. Decision was reserved.

No Game Possible on the Rain-Soaked Field of St. George.

President Day Makes a Kick Against Umpires Barnum and Fessenden.

The rain of last night and to-day put the grounds at 84, George in such a condition that ball-playing was an impossibility. Manager Hart and his galaxy arrived at the grounds on time, but immediately returned to the city. Jim O'Rourke says that the Bostonians spent the night praying for rain, for they regarded defeat as a foregone conclusion should a game take place to-day.

The orator was very much worked up over the prevention of the contest, and declared than to play twelve straight games with the League leaders on these grounds.

In spite of the brace which Umpire Be num took yesterday it is more than probable that a change will soon take place in the Lergue staff involving him and at least one other man of the present staff-that is Fessenden.

Mr. Day considers that both Barnum and Fessenden are incapable of giving satisfaction as umpires and has written President Young to that effect. Both men are essentially home umpires and, though they doubtless try to do their of the crowd. This kind of work, as is well known, does baseball infinite harm, The Boston public have repeatedly hissed in umpire for giving decialons favorable to the home club.

The papers there have denounced such de isions, and the only thing to be wondered at is that the directors of the Boston Club have permitted the partiality of an umpire to win games for the Club when the Club was and is strong enough to compete with its best rivals. Though Mr. Barnum's decisions on Monday had no marked affect on the outcome of the game yet there was a home color to them which effectively discouraged the batamen of the visitors.

So it was in Boston as against New York, only a deal more so.

Mr. Day saw Barnum's work on Monday. He has seen his work before, too, and reached a conclusion which caused the letter to Mr. Young insisting that new and more capable men should be engaged at once.

With John Relly idle the probability of Gaffney's resignation being accepted by the Association, and such men as Lon Knight, Larry Corcoran and Joe Start to be had it seems a pity that patrons of the game should be obliged to put up with such an utterly incompetent staff as is at present enrolled in the League service, and all because an autocrat at Washington wills it.

The dates of the purchases corresponded with the "demonstrations" given at Friend's House and at the factory. Howard was a cash customer and refused to give any name when buying the sugar, which was taken away by the parson's own truckman. Theodore B. Apgar, formerly a member of the bought Havemeyer Mould A sugar from him, and in every case the reverend gentleman requested the strocer to have the manufacturer's name scraped off the barrels.

Arthur Fleckman, a truckman, told hew Howard had engaged him on several occasions to bring large, empty cases from the factory in the dead of night and cart them to an unoccupied store on East Sixty-fourth street, and how he returned them the following day to the factory when they had mean while been filled.

Finally Mather McLaughlim, who was employed by Prof. Friend to look after the furnace in the Professor's house, testified that the Professor, after making him take an oath of secrecy, instructed him to turn a crank in the cellar which moved a number of sieves.

Howard and the Haisbeack would then put reflued sugar in a crusher in the dining-room, from which it ran down the heater hole through a chuit to the sieves in the cellar, and was subsequently brought upstairs again in boxes and exhibited to the wondering stockholders, who were waiting in an adjoining room.
